I. BACKGROUND AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 2, 2019, the Florida Legislature enacted SB 168, which amended Florida Statutes to further amend Chapter 908, Florida Statutes, and to amend the Florida Constitution. On June 14, 2019, Governor DeSantis signed SB 168 into law, and it became effective on June 14, 2019. See Fla. Stat. ch. 908.

A. Relevant SB 168 Provisions

This action concerns the following provisions of SB 168:

Detainer Mandate. Section 908.105 requires state and local law enforcement agencies to comply with immigration detainer requirements received from federal immigration authorities and sets forth the duties of these law enforcement agencies, as they relate to immigration detainers. See Fla. Stat. § 908.105.

§ 908.105(1) 'HWDLQH.U 0DQG DWH'

Transport Requirement. Section 908.104 sets forth various ways in which state and local law enforcement agencies must cooperate with federal immigration enforcement efforts. See Fla. Stat. § 908.104. Pursuant to § 908.104(4),

The standard of review on cross motions for summary judgment does not differ from the standard applied when only one party files a motion. See Am. Bankers Ins. Grp. v. United States, 408 F.3d 1328, 1331 (11th Cir. 2005) (court may grant a motion for summary judgment

Plaintiffs seek summary judgment on Counts II, X, and XI of the Amended Complaint and each of the remaining claims in this case and seek declaratory and injunctive relief, arguing that they are entitled to judgment as a matter of law on these claims. Plaintiffs contend that summary judgment is warranted on their Equal Protection claims because the evidence conclusively establishes SB 168's underlying discriminatory purpose and discriminatory effect. Specifically, Plaintiffs take the position that the discriminatory intent of SB 168 is evidenced by the fact that bill sponsors relied extensively on the assistance and input from known anti-immigrant hate groups in working to pass the bill and even included their biased data

In asserting a claim that a facially neutral law violates the Fourteenth Amendment based on mixed motives, a plaintiff must establish, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the alleged law is discriminatory. *Washington v. ¹² Similarly, the Eleventh Circuit has elaborated that

Equal protection claims can be divided into three broad categories. The first and most common type is a claim that a statute discriminates on its face. In such a case, a plaintiff can prevail by showing that there is no rational relationship between the statutory classification and a legitimate state goal. When the statute facially discriminates against certain groups or trenches upon certain fundamental interests, courts have required a closer connection between the statutory classification and the state purpose. The second type of equal protection claim is that neutral application of a facially neutral statute has a disparate impact. In such a case, a plaintiff must

Boyle*, 466 F.3d 1276, 1284 (11th Cir. 2006), the court held that racial considerations were a motivating factor behind those desires, and that members of the decision-making body were aware of the motivation. a. Sequence of Events & Departures from the Norm¹⁵

Defendants first argue that the evidence Plaintiffs present on the specific sequence of drafting SB 168 is insufficient as a matter of law because it fails to indicate any discriminatory intent. For this factor, Defendants note that although Plaintiffs have relied significantly on a letterhead memorandum sent to Senator Bean on December 13, 2016, No. [16-5], which attached model legislation similar to the language of SB 168, Plaintiffs fail to recognize that Senator Bean had previously introduced a bill prohibiting sanctuary policies with similar wording to SB 168. The evidence Plaintiffs changes be made but they also suggest some awareness on the part of Senator Gruters and his staff about the controversial nature of FLIMEN. For example, these email communications suggest that the list of sanctuary cities created by FA, which was e-mailed to Mr. Barnhill and was ultimately included in the Senate staff analysis, should be subject to some criticism. See, e.g.

you consider not widely distributing the list as that would just create problems. Taken together, the evidence is sufficient to withstand summary judgment on the issue of discriminatory intent.

Moreover, the April 17, 2019, press conference further bolsters the likely existence of discriminatory purpose. ¶ Q 6 % ¶ V H Q D F A t F o u g D W e e v e r T W a s E o S t e d by the bill

Clause Moreover, Defendants argue that, contrary to Plaintiffs' SB 168 will not lead to increased racial profiling by law enforcement officers because SB 168 contains an explicit provision that prohibits discrimination. See Fla. Stat. § 908.109.

For their part, Plaintiffs rely on declarations and deposition testimony of the organization representatives which describe the disproportionate impact that SB 168 has on minorities. See 3 O D L Q W L I I V - 16 (collective citations to exhibits.) Plaintiffs also point to the extensive statistical data presented in L Q ' U / L F K W Pa D O P v S e d S R i S J e p o s i t i o n which describe the negative effects of anti-sanctuary policies, proactive policing policies, and immigration partnerships between ICE officers and local law enforcement agencies. See ECF No. [1091]. Finally, Amici Curiae submitted a brief in support of Plaintiffs in this case that provided the Court with valuable and informative evidence on how law like SB 168 ha

With regard to the remaining statements that Defendants argue fail as a matter of law, the Court cannot fully assess, at this stage, whether such statements rise to the level of suggesting racial animus on the part of the entire legislative body. The resolution of outstanding factual questions like

Moreover, Plaintiffs contend that the bill sponsors also departed from the substantive norms by providing Senate staff analysis that relied on biased data supporting the ban on sanctuary cities that was produced by FAIR and CIS, and the issue of this flawed data was raised at a Senate committee meeting. Despite being alerted that these organizations were characterized as anti-immigrant hate groups, Plaintiffs point out that a few weeks later, the sponsors of SB 168 nonetheless hosted a press conference with FLIMEN and other known xenophobic groups. Plaintiffs thus contend that this cumulative evidence, along with additional circumstantial evidence, warrants granting judgment as a matter of law on the issue of discriminatory intent.

However, as Defendants point out, the evidence in the record contains many contradictions to the factual assertions cited above, thus creating genuine issues of material fact. In construing all facts in the light most favorable to Defendants, and in drawing all reasonable inferences in favor of the non-movants, the Court concludes that the record evidence consists of significant disputes of fact, which are more appropriately submitted for resolution by a trier of fact. See [113-6] at 22:1723, which is also buttressed by evidence of a history of introducing similar legislation, see ECF Nos. [110-3] & [110-4]. The ultimate resolution of this issue turns on nuanced credibility determinations and weighing of evidence, which cannot be done as a matter of summary judgment.

Moreover, turning to the erroneous inclusion of data produced by FAIR and CIS on sanctuary policies within the Senate staff analysis, Defendants note the complete absence of evidentiary support establishing that either the Legislature as a whole, or even a single legislator, mistakenly relied on this improper data in deciding on SB 168. Nor do Plaintiffs indicate that the data was of any significance in the ultimate decision to pass SB 168.

U.S. at 267. Furthermore, the existence of any noteworthy procedural or substantive abnormalities or the implications of these abnormalities is dependent upon the merits of the arguments presented. The Court declines to resolve these issues from the norm more appropriately resolved by the trier of fact.

b. Contemporary Statements & Historical Background

Plaintiffs also rely on statements made by Senator Gruters during the legislative proceedings as evidence of an intent to discriminate on national origin. Likewise, they argue that the statements suggest racial animus, the Court concludes that the statements submitted to the trier of fact.

First, with regard to the contemporary statements made by Senator Gruters, the Court concludes that the statements submitted to the trier of fact. The resolution of other outstanding factual questions, like the extent to which the evidence can reasonably lead to an inference of discriminatory intent.

Likewise, with regard to Plaintiff's arguments to the Legislature that passed SB 168, the Court finds these arguments unpersuasive and unsupported by law. The Supreme Court has made it clear that the evidence presented is insufficient to support the claim.

Court previously granted a preliminary injunction against the enforcement of the Transport Requirement and concluded that the provision was conflict preempted. See Desantis, 408 F. Supp. 3d at 1301-02. The Court also found that this provision was severable from the rest of SB 1068. at 1309. Plaintiffs urge the Court to apply the same reasoning as the Preliminary Injunction Order because the Transport Requirement is conflict preempted by federal immigration law and is therefore unconstitutional. Defendants do not present any arguments in response, but rather refer back to their Motion preserving their position on the lawfulness of the Transport Requirement.

The Transport Requirement impermissibly encroaches upon the Federal Government's authority to transport undocumented immigrants. See Arizona, 567 U.S. at 410. This is precisely the type of unilateral conduct that Arizona expressly prohibited.

Likewise, the mandate requiring law enforcement officers to obtain prior judicial authorization does not rectify the issue of unilateral conduct. Instead, this judicial authorization requirement seeks to vest additional powers in the state judiciary that conflict with
